About the Conference

Kentucky Institute for Patient Safety and Quality (KIPSQ) received a grant from the Anthem Foundation to improve patient safety for mom and baby. Through the year, KIPSQ has focused on decreasing C-section rates, reducing early elective deliveries (EED), decreasing NICU CLABSI and increasing breastfeeding education. KIPSQ accomplished this through regional, state and national quality improvement work supporting best practices, data benchmarking and technical assistance.

The Improving Patient Safety for Mom and Baby Conference will discuss the improvements accomplished through this program. This is a great opportunity for birthing hospitals to enhance their skills and knowledge base and continue to improve patient safety for mom and baby.

Target Audience:

This conference is open to representatives from every Kentucky birthing hospital. KIPSQ encourages nurse leaders, quality directors, infection preventionists and other front line staff and directors involved in patient safety and quality improvement for moms and babies to attend.
